Dr. Cabrera is board certified in internal medicine and pediatrics, and is fellowship trained in pediatric endocrinology. She has a special research interest in the prediction and prevention of type 1 diabetes mellitus and is an active member of the Max McGee Research Center for Diabetes.

Her background in both adult and pediatric medicine affords her additional knowledge in the successful transition of adolescents with type 1 diabetes into the world of adult care.

She has been on the TrialNet research team for the last couple of years and has recently stepped into the role of Principal Investigator for this project.

Dr. Susanne Cabrera

Melissa is an attorney working at the Ruder Ware law firm in Wausau, Wisconsin.

Melissa has been diagnosed with type 1 diabetes (T1D) for over 25 years. Melissa and her family frequently volunteer with JDRF and other organizations providing services and support to families dealing with T1D. Melissa is a frequent speaker on diabetes related issues with various organizations because of her unique experience as a mother of a child with T1D and also being type 1 herself.

In addition, Melissa participated in a clinical trial for an artificial pancreas in Virginia in 2014 to try and further life saving advances and treatments for those with type 1 diabetes.
